

Child Health Service

Parenting support and early feeding drop-in clinics

To support parents of newborns during the first 12 weeks after discharge from hospital. The Child and Youth Community Health Service offers a free service providing advice on feeding, parenting concerns and support for parents. No appointment is necessary.

A child health nurse will talk with you about any issues or concerns you are having. For example, you may wish to talk to the nurse about:

- feeding your baby and how they are sleeping
- getting some support and advice about breastfeeding.

The nurse can also arrange for you to attend regular appointments with the child health service.

Clinic days and hours

Parenting support and early feeding drop-in clinics are located across the Greater Brisbane area. The tables below list clinic days.

Overleaf you will find a list of addresses for these clinics.

All clinics are open between 9am and 12pm (midday) on the days specified in the tables below (closed on public holidays).

As this is a drop-in clinic you may experience a wait during busy times.

Please check our dedicated COVID-19 website for information about service and clinic closures before attending at www.childrens.health.qld.gov.au/covid-19-service-changes/
