ieMR Advanced

Fact sheet

Care Delivery

Children's Health Queensland will introduce a new integrated electronic medical record (ieMR) module – Care Delivery – as part of its ieMR Advanced Project rollout in April 2018.

Care Delivery will consolidate a number of paper-based systems into the ieMR including bedside observation charts, clinical forms, care plans and workflow organisers (e.g. task lists). This will significantly change current workflows and deliver a more streamlined and integrated clinical information system.

Benefits for staff

- Clinicians can view the vital signs trends and other clinical assessment information for patients away from the bedside.
- Data will be available to provide additional clinical decision support for patient care.
- Clinicians will be able to easily identify other practitioners who are involved in a patient's care.
- Early warning scores will be automatically calculated within the system and supported by alerts and decision support.

Benefits for patients

- A more integrated healthcare experience for patients.
- Improved service efficiencies and consistent documentation of patient care.
- Each patient's medical information will be collected into an integrated electronic record enabling clinicians to quickly and easily access their medical history and view previous tests, scans, treatments and medications.

Who is affected?

Most clinical staff will experience some changes to their existing workflows.

Training

An extensive training and support program is being implemented to ensure staff receive information and support before, during and following implementation of the new system.
